Schools fit for the future

A £167MILLION project to refurbish Hackney's secondary schools is forging ahead.

The Building Schools for the Future (BSF) programme is already under way at: Clapton Girls' Technology College,

Stoke Newington School and Hackney Free & Parochial School. Further work is due to begin this year at another three: Cardinal Pole RC School (above); Our Lady's Convent High School, and Haggerston School. The programme aims to provide state-of-the-art facilities for 7,000 students by 2015. For more details, see pages 8&9.

CLAPTON Library has reopened to the public, following a £3million renovation.

The refurbishment project marks a new chapter for the Grade II listed, neo-classical building, which first opened on 17 January 1914, just before the start of the First World War.

Since November 2008, work has been going on to restore the library to its former glory, retaining and uncovering its original features, while updating facilities. The new library has a striking extension designed by renowned architects Shephard Epstein Hunter.

It provides more space and comfort, with a new area for private study, a meeting room for community use, and quiet reading areas with hot drinks.

There are also better facilities and access for disabled users, including a new lift and an audio scanner, which reads books aloud. The study area has 15 computers with free Internet access and many online learning resources, plus another eight machines in the children's library. There is also an area for teenagers.

“The Council was determined this 100-year-old library should be an excellent resource for residents”

Clapton now has a greater range of books, CDs and DVDs. The library will be fully equipped with self-service technology, which gives customers the option to issue and return books, CDs and DVDs themselves. But a traditional counter service will still be available.

Sustainability has been at the heart of the refurbishment, with rain water harvesting, solar water heating, solar powered ventilation, and energy efficient lighting built into the design.

Jules Pipe, Mayor of Hackney, was due to officially reopen the library on 22 February. He said: “The Council was determined this 100-year-old library should be an excellent resource for residents, so has worked with architects to create a design that offers users more space, better access, an improved stock range, and facilities fit for the 21st century, while remaining sympathetic to the building's design.”

Clapton Library is one of eight in Hackney, with a new library set to be part of the Dalston Square development.

Message from the Mayor

Helping young people reach their full potential

IN the current economic climate, our young people face increasing competition to secure a future for themselves. Now more than ever, education and the development of new skills and experience is an important foundation for success.

I am delighted, therefore, with three developments this month, each of which will enable our younger residents to equip themselves with the skills and knowledge to prosper in the future.

The newly-refurbished library

A £3million restoration of Clapton Library is finally complete and the Grade II listed building has opened its doors to the public once more. The Council has completed a renovation that restores the best features of a historic building, while equipping the library with facilities to provide residents with a 21st century information service.

In a separate development, under the second phase of our ambitious Building Schools for the Future programme, designs are shortly to be finalised and work will soon begin on new buildings for a further three of the borough's schools. Haggerston, Cardinal Pole and Our Lady's Convent schools will benefit from brand new facilities, which will improve the learning environment for our students and help them to achieve their best.

And for those who are not currently in education, the Council has secured funding to create 100 paid jobs with training and mentoring for young residents who have been out of work for more than six months. This is in addition to our existing 'Ways into Work' programme, which successfully assisted 700 long-term unemployed people to find jobs in its first year alone, helping raise the borough's employment rate to an all-time-high.

Hackney is a borough with one of the highest number of young people in London. These developments are not the end of the story, but just the latest demonstration of the importance the Council attaches to enabling our young residents to reach their full potential.

A proposed design for the new flagship youth centre in Forest Road, E8

By Gracia Douglas

THE Council has been awarded nearly £5million in Government funding to build two new youth centres, and upgrade three existing ones over the next two years.

A flagship centre will be built in Forest Road, E8, and another at Woodberry Down, N4. Existing centres in Hoxton Hall, Shoreditch; Concorde Centre, Homerton; and Milton Garden, N16, are all being refurbished. The new facilities are set to change the face of youth provision in Hackney, offering a place for all young people, with a range of activities and support available.

The programme is being funded through the Government's myplace programme and will be carried out in partnership with The Learning Trust.

Young people have been asked to name the new centres. Over 100 entries have been received and close to 200 names were suggested in a competition open to 11 to 19-year-olds who live or work in the borough.

A panel, which included youth workers and a team of 13 to 19-year-olds who have been involved with the development of the centres from the outset, had

The new name will set the tone of what young people want for themselves in this borough for years to come the role of reviewing the suggestions to come up with a short list of three.

Cllr Rita Krishna, Cabinet Member for Children's Services was also on the panel. She said: "The new name will set the tone of what young people want for themselves in this borough for years to come. The number of competition entries shows that people want to play a part." An online vote will now choose which of the three short listed names will be emblazoned on youth centres across the borough: 'Youth at the Heart of Hackney', 'One for All' or 'Young Hackney'.

Those who suggested names on the short list will receive an I Love Hackney T-Shirt and beanie hat.

The person who entered the winning name will get £100 in vouchers.

Painting and decorating student Jonathan talks to the Duke of Kent, the new patron of homelessness charity St Mungo's

By
Marcel Reinard

THE Duke of Kent has made his first visit St Mungo's' hostel in his new role as patron of the homelessness charity.

The hostel works in partnership with the Council and other third sector organisations to help improve the lives of homeless and vulnerable residents. It supports them into work by offering literacy and numeracy courses, painting and decorating training, and arts, music and life skills coaching in things like cooking.

On 18 February, the Duke met with residents and staff at the Mare Street hostel to find out more about some of the people who use its services, as well as the work St Mungo's is doing to help get people off the streets. Jonathan, 28, a former resident is now living in his own place in Shoreditch and has just started a painting and decorating course. He said: “It was very nice talking to the Duke of Kent, I felt privileged to meet him.”

“It was very nice talking to the Duke of Kent, I felt privileged to meet him”

Previously offering dormitory-style accommodation for 150 people, the hostel re-opened last year after a major refurbishment through the Government's Places of Change programme.

It now provides accommodation, as well as links to health services and point of contacts for careers through its Pathways to Employment programme.

Over the last 12 months, the hostel has helped 120 people into jobs and 700 into training.

St Mungo's has been helping rough sleepers and homeless people across London for 40 years.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Sand of God?

WITH the South Africa 2010 World Cup now only four months away, football fever of a different nature is set to take hold closer to home. In June, Shoreditch Park is set to host a televised international beach soccer tournament, with fixtures scheduled to coincide with World Cup matches and shown on a 30sq ft screen. The tournament will be played in a temporary stadium holding 1,000 tons of sand, 4,000 spectator seats and a range of interactive games and exhibitions. There will be beach soccer coaching, with introductory sessions for all ages and abilities.

Cllr Nargis Khan, Cabinet Member for Community Services, said: “The timing means the local community can enjoy a true shared party atmosphere not just for the international fixtures happening here on the sand, but also those being contested at the same time in South Africa.”

Dalston traffic congestion eased

TRAFFIC diversions around Dalston Lane between Graham Road and Kingsland Road are set to be removed at the end of this month.

Major works to extend the East London Line to Highbury & Islington started in March 2009, closing Dalston Lane to westbound traffic. Vehicles were diverted to allow engineers to complete the second of four phases of bridge works outside the new Dalston Junction station between Ashwin Street and Kingsland High Street.

Late last month, all traffic was diverted from the same section of Dalston Lane when it was closed for emergency utility works to repair a collapsed sewer. These works are now complete and Dalston Lane eastbound is open to traffic. The westbound lane is expected to re-open by the end of this month.

For more travel news, including info about the Hackney section of the North London Line – which closed this month for major engineering works, expected to last until June – and tips for alternative routes, see page 27.

Hackney Empire public meeting

A PUBLIC meeting about future plans for the Hackney Empire, due to take place this month, has been rescheduled for 11 March.

The meeting will be an opportunity to ask questions of a panel made up of Empire senior staff and its Board of Trustees, together with officers from the Arts Council and Hackney Council.

It will be independently chaired by leading arts professional, Jodi Myers, and will take place in the Empire's main auditorium, Mare Street, E8, from 6.30-8pm. Admission is free.

100 new jobs for
Hackney's young people

Jobseeking century

WINSTON Churchill visited Hackney's first labour exchange 100 years ago this month.

To coincide with the centenary of one of the country's first job centres – a part of Churchill's solution to rising unemployment in the early 20th century – Hackney Museum, in Reading Lane, E8, is hosting a commemorative exhibition. The display features objects and photographs that recreate a 1910 exchange office, complete with period furniture, equipment and signs. The exhibition is commissioned by the Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) to mark Churchill's vision of bringing workers looking for employers, and vice versa, together. It also explores how exchanges, now called Jobcentre Plus, evolved in line with social changes. DWP Permanent Secretary Sir Leigh Lewis, who came to the exhibition with Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, Yvette Cooper, said: "It was great to get a snapshot of Jobcentre Plus's past. It has changed so much from those first days of separate rooms for men and women. Hackney Museum does the history of the labour exchange proud and really tells the story of an important part of our society." 100 Years and Counting – Helping People into Work runs until 6 March. Scrutinising issues that matter

WHO holds Hackney decision-makers to account, and suggests ways of improving public services in the borough? This is the role of Hackney's Scrutiny Commissions, committees of Councillors who work across party political lines to put the issues that matter under the spotlight.

Each year the five Scrutiny Commissions carry out reviews of issues suggested by residents through an annual survey. Anyone can get involved, either by attending meetings, registering their opinions or recommending topics for future work. The Scrutiny Commissions are: Health in Hackney; Children and Young People; Governance and Resources; Living in Hackney; and Community Safety and Social Inclusion Scrutiny.

Last year's survey showed crime was among the top priorities for residents, so two commissions jointly investigated anti-social behaviour on housing estates, and recommended improved means to tackle the issue.

100 new youth jobs

By
Emma Britton

THE Council has secured funding to create 100 paid jobs in the public and community sectors for Hackney's young people.

Aimed at 18 to 24-year-olds who have been out of work for at least six months, the jobs form part of a bid to support residents through the recession.

Young people will be offered jobs with the Council, Hackney Homes, The Learning Trust, and NHS City and Hackney. Hackney Community and Voluntary Service will co-ordinate community-sector jobs, including positions at Dalston's Arcola Theatre.

The jobs are part of the five Olympic host boroughs' bid to create 611 jobs for long-term unemployed young people. The placements will last at least six months, offering

Apprentices get together

AROUND 40 apprentices came together for a lively networking lunch at Hackney Community College on 5 February. Typically, an apprentice will work four days a week and attend college one day. They earn a real wage.

Ahad Miah works at The Learning Trust, as part of an NVQ in Information, Advice and Guidance. He said: "I love the fact that apprenticeships offer practical work, with a recognised qualification."

Mohima Begum Miah works at the nursery at Hackney Community College. She said: "I want to be a primary school teacher. It's a great opportunity. You get more experience – plus a salary."

training, mentoring and varied roles to develop skills for a route into full-

and the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games, said: "The Council is determined to ensure residents have access to high-quality jobs and training. By bringing resources from our public services and our businesses together, we can create employment opportunities for young residents starting their working lives during this economic downturn. Through this approach, we can help young residents into work and support our local economy."

Arcola Executive Director, Ben Todd, said: "By creating paid starting-out roles in the arts, we will open the door to the many dedicated, hardworking young people in Hackney who might otherwise not be able to enter this industry."

The jobs are paid for through the Future Jobs Fund, run by the Department for Work and Pensions and Department for Communities and Local Government and with input from Jobcentre Plus.

Get hitched in Hackney

By
Siobhan Silbert

TYING the knot but not sure where? With its green spaces, cutting edge culture and amazing buildings, Hackney has something for every couple.

From a Victorian theatre and 16th century manor house, to a 1930s Art Deco ballroom and modern rooftop terrace overlooking the City – all licensed venues – there's never been a better time to get hitched in Hackney. Each location offers its own unique appeal and allows a couple to find a venue to suit every taste and budget.

The Council's busy registrars conduct thousands of weddings, civil partnerships and vow renewals every year. The registration service offers a bespoke consultation where you can discuss your requirements in detail.

The Deputy Mayor of Hackney, Cllr Karen Alcock, said: "With the Council's recent re-opening of the Art Deco Stoke Newington Town Hall, it's fantastic to see ever more great wedding venues opening in the borough.

"This gives residents and visitors alike more choice to pick the venue they feel is perfect for their special day."

Building a bright future

With the first phase of the £167million Building Schools for the Future programme near completion, Hackney Today takes a look at the next three schools set to be upgraded and the benefits for pupils and the wider community

By
Gracia Douglas

SECONDARY education in Hackney is undergoing a transformation that will see all the borough's schools rebuilt or refurbished.

The Council has secured £167million from the Government for its ambitious Building Schools for the Future (BSF) programme, which aims to provide state-of-the-art learning facilities for nearly 7,000 students across the borough by 2015. Work is well under way on the first three schools to be transformed – Clapton Girls' Technology College, E5, Stoke Newington School, N16, and Hackney Free & Parochial CE Secondary School, E9.

In the coming year, the second phase of works will begin, with three more schools benefiting from fantastic new facilities.

The third and final phase of BSF will see the modernisation of Hackney's Special Education Needs (SEN) schools and Pupil Referral Units (PRUs).

Cllr Rita Krishna, Cabinet Member for Children's Services, said: "Every pupil in the borough will have access to the first class buildings they deserve, and in which they can pursue their goals and fulfil their true potential. The BSF programme will dramatically change the way we teach and learn in Hackney and create modern facilities that serve the whole community."

Haggerston School, Weymouth Terrace, E2

THIS Grade II listed building was designed by acclaimed architect Erno Goldfinger in the early 1960s. He was also responsible for Trellick Tower in Notting Hill.

Today Haggerston caters for 800 girls, aged 11 to 16. This September, will see the admission of boys for the first time in the school's history and also the launch of a sixth-form with approximately 250 students.

BSF will allow the current facilities to be modernised, while remaining true to the award-winning architecture of the original site. Haggerston will benefit from the addition of a new building which will raise capacity for the co-educational and sixth-form requirements.

What matters most to you in Hackney?

The borough's Scrutiny Councillors need to know your views.

From prevention of crime, to housing, to health and education, we want to know what your top priorities are, as part of an annual survey to shape next year's Scrutiny work programme.

Scrutiny Commissions are made up of councillors who work across party political lines to investigate issues of local concern, and they need to know what Hackney residents want to see reviewed from June this year.

Good Scrutiny plays an important role in the development of better policies and improving performance, and can hold the Council and outside agencies to account, including police and the health service.

Last year's survey showed crime was among the top priorities for residents, and so as part of our wider work two Scrutiny Commissions jointly investigated anti-social behaviour on housing estates, with a view to recommending improved means to tackle the issue.

Home is where her heart is

Alice Burke has devoted the last 35 years of her life to working for the local community in Clapton's Nightingale estate

By
Marcel Reinard

FROM the day Alice Burke first walked into her home more than three decades ago, she's loved and fought for her estate.

"I get calls at two in the morning: 'Alice I'm locked out, Alice I've got no water, Alice there's water pouring into the flat'. Sometimes I don't even know who they are, but it's always 'my neighbour told me you might be able to help'. I can't refuse, if someone is in trouble I want to help," said the chair of Nightingale estate's Tenant Residents' Association (TRA).

“It's a nice estate, a quiet estate. People smile and say hello”

"I remember when I first came here in 1975, it was snowing and most of the estate hadn't been built yet. My husband and I were shown our home and it was so warm, so beautiful. I whispered to him 'quick, sign up, do it before they change their minds'," she recalled.

Previously Alice, her husband and children lived in private housing in Chingford, Essex, but became tired of outside toilets, zinc baths in front of a fire, and property so damp mushrooms grew on the walls. After wrangling with the now defunct Greater London Council (GLC) – "I threatened to leave my children with them" – the family were placed in social housing in Stamford Hill and later Clapton.

"When I saw an upstairs bathroom, two toilets and a kitchen three times the size of our old one, I couldn't believe it. The kids had so many baths the bills went through the roof," Alice laughed.

The early years in their new home passed with evenings of community entertainment and youth clubs and Alice joined the TRA to give something back. "Then came the muggings and the smashing in of doors. There was an old lady who lived on the first floor. They kicked her door in and held a knife to her throat to get her money," she said.

Things got worse in 1986 when the GLC was disbanded.

Alice said: "The estate became a slum. There were refuse strikes, rubbish all over the roads and when our own TRA disbanded, it was open season on the estate: squatters, prostitutes, sexual assaults, everything."

In the 1990s, several estates in Hackney were in line for Government funding. Nightingale was one, but needed a stronger TRA. With Alice as chair, the Nightingale Residents Association (NRA) was re-formed. "We worked with the police and Council to clear out the crime," she said.

The community started to rise again. "On Christmas Eve 1993, I got a call: 'Alice, we got it!' I said got what? 'The money, we got the money!' The Government had approved Nightingale estate to receive £60million.

The NRA continued to work with the Council to make further improvements to the estate, such as a new playground. Affordable housing for families in nearby flats and estates was also built – incorporating design ideas from the NRA.

"The tower blocks (blown up by Alice on BBC's 'Top Gear') were replaced with one and two bedroom flats, not above five floors; three, four and five bedroom houses called 'lifetime homes' to make allowances for if you become disabled in later life."

All these achievements are even more admirable after suffering personal tragedies, including five strokes and losing both her husband and daughter within a year.

"I threw myself into the community – it was my way of grieving," she said.

And her efforts have not gone unnoticed: last December she won the Ron Devoti award at the Hackney Homes Active Residents Awards 2009.

"It's nice to get thanks for the work you do, but the most important thing is that it has helped.

"You can walk around the flats at night now; it's a nice estate, a quiet estate. People smile and say hello, people you don't even know – that's when you know you've got a good community."

All your recycling questions answered

Q: I recycle food waste through the Council's Blue Bin scheme and have been told there are liners I can use – but they have to be a particular type. Where can I get them from?

A: It is important that only compostable liners bearing the European Standard compostable symbol (EN13432) are used to line our Blue Bins.

Residents can use seven-litre liners in the kitchen caddy, and larger 20-litre ones in their blue bins.

Certified compostable liners are now available through most of the major supermarket chains, or bought online at: www.gardeningdelights.com

Niyaz, 13, and Joan Ruddock, Minister of State for Energy and Climate Change, discuss global warming with other Hackney Free students

Energetic debate

By
Marcel Reinard

A GOVERNMENT minister joined pupils from Hackney Free and Parochial School, E9, for a climate change debate.

Joan Ruddock MP, Minister of State for Energy and Climate Change, met with geography students on 9 February to discuss the outcomes of last year's Copenhagen Climate Conference and the dangers of global warming. She also launched a nationwide competition for secondary school students to design postcards from 2050, imagining what our environment could be like if action is not taken now.

The Minister congratulated Hackney Free on its commitment to environmental education, which has led to the school being awarded four Green Flags. Recent campaigns

“A great event for the school and for the legacy of outstanding work it has been doing on the environment” have included ‘switch off fortnight’, where students made sure lights were turned off in any unoccupied school rooms; and a scheme to recycle Christmas cards.

Enda Finlay, Head of Geography, said: “This was a unique occasion for our students to discuss the future they want to see.

“It was a great event for the school and for the legacy of outstanding work it has been doing on the environment.”

Hot drinks and real nappies

By Naomi Ocansey

NEW parents interested in switching to reusable nappies can attend a free coffee morning – and claim a cash voucher to put towards purchasing them.

The first Nappuccino event of 2010 took place on 22 January at Hackney City Farm, E2. It included a presentation on the benefits of washable nappies, and demonstrations on how to use them.

Modern washable nappies can save money and the Council provides those interested in trying them out with a £54 real nappy voucher.

Olivia Festy found the event helpful and engaging. She said: “It was great hearing about the benefits of using real nappies. Most importantly, I claimed my voucher, which I can use to get me started.”

Get help to grow your own food

By Olaide Oyekanmi

RESIDENTS who live on an estate and want to grow food, or get together with neighbours and start a community garden, can get help from Hackney Homes.

Support is on offer for a range of food growing initiatives across estates. Hackney Homes can equip residents with seeds, plants and seasoned advice from its team of estate gardeners.

On a number of Hackney estates, residents are already turning simple green spaces into beautiful herb gardens.

Turkish and African residents have introduced

new herbs to their neighbours, sharing everyday recipes that use them.

As well as bringing together residents from different backgrounds, the projects give them the chance to grow food that is cheap and healthy.

Residents can also apply for sums of between £200 and £1,500 to turn underused land into a vegetable patch through the Capital Growth Scheme.

Recycling high

JANUARY saw the Council record its highest recycling rate ever, thanks to the efforts of residents.

Over 27 per cent of rubbish in the borough was collected for recycling.

This indicates residents are committed to recycling and benefiting from the recent expansion of services to include household plastic packaging and cartons in Green Box collections.

Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said:

"This is a fantastic achievement and it is down to the good work of our residents. We have come a long way, but there is still a lot more to do. Over 60 per cent of household waste can be recycled and we need to work together to make sure we are doing as much as possible to get everyone recycling."

By recycling more, residents are saving taxpayer money that would have otherwise been spent sending waste materials to landfill.

This money can then be re-invested into key services.

Hunt for future rowing stars

Young people carrying a boat at a London Youth Rowing summer school (above) and Mark Hunter's 2008 Olympic gold medal (top)

By Ruth Garland

TWO Olympic stars joined pupils and teachers at Mossbourne Community Academy to launch a new rowing programme that aims to discover future champions.

Mossbourne, with support from charity London Youth Rowing, will provide sixth form places for promising rowers from September, with training taking place at the historic Lea Rowing Club in Clapton.

Triple Olympic silver medallist Katherine Grainger and Beijing 2008 Olympic gold medallist Mark Hunter encouraged youngsters to enter trials for the Mossbourne Rowing Academy, whether or not they have any experience. Katherine said: "It's not easy. It takes blood, sweat and tears, but the rewards are phenomenal."

Liam Downes, 17, is studying for A-levels at Mossbourne. "I started rowing two years ago, and in my first year I won bronze at the national championships. It shows how much you can achieve in a short time," he said.

“It's not easy. It takes blood, sweat and tears but the rewards are phenomenal”

Liam admitted: "I absolutely hated it at first." Now he trains for 20 hours a week, and this month enters the Great Britain Junior Trials – the first stage in his ambition to take part in the 2016 Olympics.

The Learning Trust and Hackney's School Sports Partnership champion rowing in the borough.

Hackney will also soon have pioneering facilities for indoor rowing, thanks to partnership between the Met Police, London Youth Rowing, Arsenal in the Community, Hackney Homes and The Learning Trust. A disused community space at Vaine House, E9, is being kitted out with machines linked to a large screen, which will enable young rowers from around the world to get fit and compete against each other.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Hackney Training Orchestra at last month's Trailblazers event at Hackney Empire

Hitting a high note

YOUNG people are receiving an 'outstanding' musical experience at Hackney's schools and colleges, according to a recent study.

A report from the Federation of Music Services found The Learning Trust, which delivers educational services in Hackney on behalf of the Council, was on target to meet Government objectives for local authority music services, including ensuring every school was designated a singing school by 2011.

Established in 2000, the Music Service is also supported by the Department for Children, Schools and Families, and the Instrument Fund.

The service operates in all of the borough's 73 schools, subsidises a Saturday Centre for Young Musicians and holds regular music-making holiday courses. Every year, the service runs the popular Hackney Schools Music Festival, which lasts for three weeks and involves over 4,500 children and young people.

Extra classes at Hackney Free

HACKNEY Free and Parochial COE Secondary School has announced plans to offer extra support in Maths and English for pupils across the borough.

The school in Paragon Road, E9, will launch Saturday classes for both primary and secondary students from other Hackney schools, to supplement existing studies. The school said it wanted to help young people that may be struggling in both subjects improve their opportunities and achieve better grades by offering extra lessons outside normal school hours.

Secondary students will be taught from the current National Curriculum, focusing on understanding and applying Maths and English. Primary pupils will be taught from the 2012 Curriculum that combines traditional learning with Olympic ideals of high achievement. Classes will be in the old school premises until Easter, when Hackney Free will move to a new state-of-the-art building, as part of Hackney's

The supplementary school will cater for primary and secondary students

Building Schools for the Future programme. Starting on 27 February, three classes will run between 10am-1pm, on Saturdays during term time, at a fee of £2 per week. For info call Greg Hodgson on: 020 8985 2430

£52k for pupils who need a boost

HACKNEY is to receive a £52,000 cash injection to provide personalised education assistance for 14 to 15-year-old students across the borough.

Schools Minister Iain Wright made the announcement during a visit to Clapton Girls' Technology College on 9 February.

The funding is part of the Government's £20million nationwide foundation learning programme. It will be used to support pupils who may need an extra boost to help them move onto GCSEs, diplomas or apprenticeships.

Schools Minister Iain Wright with Clapton Girls' students

Examples of the specialised learning include smaller-sized classes, extra support in Maths, English and information communication technology, vocational-focused teaching and personal tuition.

Cheryl Day, head teacher of Clapton Girls', said: "Personalised learning to meet the needs of all of our students is key to success at Clapton Girls' Technology College. Foundation learning is one pathway that offers appropriate provision for targeted students who respond to specific high quality learning opportunities."

Where Three Dreams Cross: 150 years of photography from India, Pakistan and Bangladesh. Whitechapel Gallery, until 11 April

THIS is the first major collection of historic and contemporary photography from India, Pakistan and Bangladesh. Spanning genres from street and reportage to studio, the images include those from the earliest days of photography in the 1860s, to modern digital shots. Ghostly, formal family portraits from the first Indian-run photographic studios in the 19th century, show how photography played its early cultural part. It is also a fascinating view of what life was like then, and you can see the influence of history; Maharajas and princely princes combine old-fashioned English dress with traditional clothes.

Grace, beauty and kinship shines through the images as a common thread with portraiture from across the periods; some of those photographed pose self-consciously for the camera and others simply stare back at it. Unlike Western images, the photos don't date much; a picture of two young girls with delicately made-up faces from the 1980s could easily be from 20 years before or after. The exhibition spans the high and mighty, the alluring and pretty, those gritty with experience to those alive with naivety, and the environments from which they were. It is one of critical cultural and artistic significance, and most definitely a visually satisfying trip.

Changing Lives: Celebrating Hackney's Voluntary and Community Sector.Rivington Place, EC2A, 3 March, then at various venues across the borough

AN exhibition of photographic stills and oral accounts are about to provide a window into the lives of 12 voluntary and community sector groups in Hackney.

Photojournalist Katherine Green visited a few of the many volunteer groups in the borough to find real-life stories of those offering their time and services for free, and meeting the people who receive it.

Her work – commissioned by the Council for HCVS, Hackney's leading voluntary and community sector support agency – presents a visual and written record of those involved in activities from tree planting to hosting dance classes, and from people applying for funding to simply making tea.

The exhibition will move to different venues across the borough for six months, stopping off at galleries, public spaces, community events and estate halls.

While only showing work about 12 of the 1,800 groups in the borough, HCVS hopes it provides a reminder of the importance of volunteers. As Eileen Bellot, a local volunteer specialising in therapy, said: "If you see the faces of people when they've had their treatments, you know you've had an immediate impact."

HCVS is looking for venues to host the exhibition. If you have a space and are interested in putting on the exhibition, call:

A DRIVEN teenager dedicated to promoting volunteering has received funding to help produce a new magazine in Hackney.

Rhasan Brunner, 15, has been awarded £750 to continue his work connecting young people with the rest of Hackney's community, through a magazine detailing volunteering opportunities available in the borough.

Vision Youth Volunteering Magazine will also feature stories on individuals who are active volunteers. It is a continuation of Vision Volunteering, a project established in October 2008, led by Rhasan and run by young people.

The money was awarded by O2 on 4 February as part of its 'Its Your Community' Programme.

“I hope this magazine will make a real difference to how young people interact in their community”

Rhasan said: “We are thrilled to have been awarded this money by O2. We have had a lot of support with getting this project off the ground and our dream of producing a magazine is now turning into reality.”

An active volunteer since the age of 12, he added: “I hope this magazine will make a real difference to how young people interact in their community.”

A spokesman for O2, said the programme was created to benefit young people's projects such as Rhasan's and inspire others to make a positive difference to their area.

Cookery in the community

By Olaide Oyekanmi

COOKING clubs are cropping up in Hackney, following the introduction of ten community kitchens on Hackney estates.

Anna-Nina, 16, from Webb Estate, said: “We're going to start using the kitchen at Lea View estate to cook African, Turkish and Chinese dishes.

“I'm looking forward to trying out what I learn at home with my family.”

Sonia Bradley, Hackney Homes Youth Co-ordinator, added: “These cooking clubs are taking off on estates. That is why we have allocated £16,000 to this project to develop this and encourage as many young people as possible.”

Kitchens are also available at Bannister, Fellows Court, Kingsmead, Nye Bevan, New Kingshold and Nightingale estates, and at Woodberry Down's Robin Redmond Resource Centre.

They were introduced last year thanks to a partnership between the Council, Hackney Homes, NHS City and Hackney and the Shoreditch Trust.

Soca dancers enjoying a workout at Queensbridge Sports & Community Centre

By
James Willsher

BHANGRA dancing sessions are now on offer to help keep the borough's over-50s fit and healthy.

The free classes start on 24 February, at Kings Hall Leisure Centre, and run for 10 weeks. It is hoped they will appeal to older residents from all backgrounds, including those from South Asian communities. Soca dance classes have also begun at Queensbridge, Britannia and Kings Hall leisure centres. They run for 12 weeks from 15 February.

All the dance sessions are part of the 'Our Best Ability' programme for older residents, funded by NHS City and Hackney's Healthy Communities Team and organised by the Council.

Cllr Nargis Khan, Cabinet Member for Community Services, said: "The Council is committed to enabling people to keep fit and stay active for as long as possible, exercise can play an important role in this and needn't be a drudge, it can be exciting and fun."

Bhangra classes at Kings Hall Leisure Centre, Lower Clapton Road, E5, will run from 12.30-1.30pm on Wednesdays.

Soca sessions at Queensbridge Sports and Community Centre, Holly Street, E8, will run from 11am-12noon on Tuesdays. At Britannia Leisure Centre, Hyde Road, N1, from 2.30-3.30pm on Wednesdays. And Kings Hall from 9.30-10.30am on Thursdays. Soca classes cost £1.70.

NEWS IN BRIEFEight-hour dance marathon fundraiser

COMEDIENNE Jo Brand will be the star guest at a dance marathon to raise money for a local charity. Headway East London is staging the eight hours of non-stop dancing at Hoxton Hall to support people dealing with the long-term consequences of a head or brain injury. The charity is looking for people to sign up for the event and help raise funds to provide neuro-physiotherapy, yoga, and other exercise therapies that enable Headway members to live independently again.

The 9000, La Supercool Discotheque and nine-piece band The Funk Soul Brothers will provide the music on the night.

With a cornucopia of dance styles from swing and salsa to break dancing advertised, Headway stressed no previous dancing skills are required. Prizes will also be awarded throughout the dance marathon.

The event takes place on 27 February, from 3-11pm, at Hoxton Hall, Hoxton Street, N1, with the charity's patron Jo Brand, making an appearance in the evening. For more info, call Sandra Ma on: 020 7749 7798; or visit: www.headwayeastlondon.org/events/dance-marathon-2010

Advice pack for carers

A CARERS' information pack is now available across Hackney to help those looking after someone with a mental health issue.

The pack, produced by East London NHS Foundation Trust, contains a list of mental health conditions, services, benefits and allowances, and information for young carers, as well as guidance on the Mental Health Act (1983). There are also emergency contact details if a crisis occurs outside office hours.

A carer is someone who spends a large part of their time providing unpaid practical help or emotional support to a family member or friend. And while 800 carers have registered on Hackney's main carer database – managed by City and Hackney Carers' Centre – the actual figure is likely to be higher.

Rita Dove, who cares for someone with a mental health condition, said: "I am very pleased that carers are being recognised for all their effort. It's hard work and very stressful being a carer, but with the right information and support we can help the professionals in supporting the people we look after."

For more information, or to order a pack, go to:

Oooh, send matron a message

PATIENTS at Homerton hospital now have another way to make their views known, alongside the usual bedside visits.

Available on every ward, new 'message to matron' cards and mini pillar boxes will allow patients to post suggestions, views and any potential concerns they may have.

Jennie Negus, Deputy Director of Nursing, explained: "We are

constantly looking for new ways to gain feedback from our patients and to get a 'patient's eye' view of our services on the wards and in our departments. Our matrons cover a number of clinical departments, so this is an alternative way for patients to make contact with them, if they miss them when they are on their ward rounds.

"These postcards are another way patients can tell us what we are doing well – and where we might do better."

The pillar-boxes also supplement the patient experience trackers – multi-language handheld computer questionnaires – introduced at the hospital in 2007.

*'A strenuous and consistent assertor
Of the cause of civil and religious liberty
And of the free exercise of reason
In the investigation of truth'* – Dr John Aikin's epitaph in St Mary's Churchyard, N16

“A favourite residence for persons engaged in the commerce of the metropolis, who wish to withdraw from its noise and smoke”

Literary shadow

Clockwise from above: 106 Stoke Newington Church Street by T.H. Shepherd, 1844; Aikin Court, Stoke Newington, c1950; portrait c1810; letter against the use of sugar produced through the slavery; title page of 'Poems' 1791

By Sally England,
Local Studies Librarian

JOHN Aikin is sadly now only remembered – if at all – as the younger brother of poet and fellow-dissenter Anna Laetitia Barbauld.

Aikin was born at Kibworth Harcourt, Leicestershire, where his father was a Unitarian minister. In 1756, the family moved to Warrington where Rev Aikin was offered a teaching post at the newly opened Warrington Academy for the children of religious dissenters.

It was there that the young John received his first formal education. After graduating from the Dutch University of Leiden in 1784, Aikin moved to Great Yarmouth to be near his sister, who was then living in Thetford, Norfolk.

Yarmouth society was divided between religious dissenters and the town corporation, which sided with the Church of England clergy. As a non-conformist, Aikin felt that he found 'intrigue and jealousy meeting me in every quarter'.

In the 1790s, he published anonymous pamphlets expressing his exasperation with the established church, but his authorship was discovered and his professional life in Yarmouth ruined.

Aikin, his wife Martha, and their four children fled to London. Living close to Hackney, he was welcomed by dissenters both as a physician and a free-thinker. It was a 'blessed change' his daughter Lucy recalled, but only four years later Aikin suffered a stroke.

Aikin's sister Anna Laetitia had moved to Stoke Newington in 1802 and he now joined her there, living at 106 Church Street for the last 24 years of his life.

He was able to indulge in his passion for literature, publishing works concerned with medicine and religious freedom, as well as education, geography, biography, poetry, natural history, literary criticism and prison reform. Copies of these works are held at Hackney Archives, as are a collection of his letters.

Of Aikin's books, the local descriptions in his 'The History of the Environs of London' of 1811 make fascinating reading for today's researcher. Of Hackney he wrote: "The goodness of its soil, and the artificial beauties of plantation and culture with which it is decorated, together with its convenient distance, have long rendered it a favourite residence for persons engaged in the commerce of the metropolis, who wish to withdraw from its noise and smoke."

Aikin wished 'to not live longer than I can use my pen' but this was not to be. The diarist Henry Crabb Robinson noted that 'he had for some years sunk into imbecility after a youth and middle age of great activity'.

John Aikin died at his home in Stoke Newington Church Street on December 7, 1822.

The next Hackney History page will take a closer look at the life and work of Anna Laetitia Barbauld.

Social Worker

£30,345 - £37,851

Apply by: 7 March 2010

Social workers need good support from the organisation they work for, freedom to practise at a high level and a range of intellectual abilities and emotional resilience to bring to the task. In short, social workers need to be highly professional. These are the type of people that we want working for us in Hackney. We have several units up and running and are now recruiting skilled Social Workers, who are committed to an evidence based approach and are excited about the impact we can have with the children and families we work with in Hackney.

The successful candidate will hold a recognised General Social Care Council (GSCC) qualification, be able to thrive in a complex and demanding environment and have experience in social work with families. It is also expected that you will have the ability to create a rapport and build relationships with children and parents or carers. A knowledge and understanding of child development, parenting capacity, environmental factors and risk and protective factors is also required.

innovative YOT's in the country. Our Social Work Units have revolutionised the way we deliver Children's Social Care in Hackney. We are now developing the model within Family Intervention Projects in the YOT. The successful candidate will lead the work of a YOT unit and be responsible for assessing, planning and delivering focused interventions to work with families and young people to help them change behaviour and achieve positive outcomes. They will possess the skills and experience to safeguard children and reduce risks of reoffending and other risks to the public. A recognised General Social Care Council (GSCC) social work qualification is required. This is an exciting opportunity for an experienced qualified YOT worker or Social Worker.

In what ways is it challenging?

We work with families with a range of difficult issues including substance misuse, mental health issues, domestic violence, and poverty. It is challenging to try to help families address those issues. Social Workers also hold a lot of responsibility for protecting vulnerable populations, such as children, which can be challenging.

How is the job rewarding?

As a Social Worker, the relationships you build with the family are very rewarding. Although we do not always become involved with families under the best of circumstances, it is special when you are able to form a positive relationship and help them make meaningful changes in their home and family life.

Are there any special requirements for fulfilling the role?

Social Work requires a recognised General Social Care Council (GSCC) qualification professional qualification. A satisfactory Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) disclosure at enhanced level is also required.

Kingsmead Primary School pupils taking part in the 'Go! Go! Go!' interactive theatre production

By
Gabriel Harriss

PUPILS at Kingsmead Primary School were treated to an interactive performance about travelling to school by The Big Wheel Theatre Company.

The E9 school was one of 10 in Hackney to see 'Go! Go! Go!' this month, as a reward for all their hard work keeping their school travel plan active.

Pupils took part in each performance, with everyone given a part to play in the production. Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "School travel plans are incredibly important in helping promote a safe and sustainable means of travel for pupils, parents and teachers. It is great to see our pupils enjoying these theatre productions, which carry such an important message in an engaging and entertaining way."

Other schools to get a visit were Tawhid Boys School and Tyssen community primary in Stamford Hill; Northwold, Grasmere Getters, and St Mary's CE primary schools

The actors completely captivated the children and held their attention in Stoke Newington; and Our Lady and St Joseph RC Primary School in Dalston.

Sebright primary in Hackney Wick, St John the Baptist CE primary in Hoxton and Lauriston primary in South Hackney also enjoyed the production. Peter Sanders, Deputy Head at Lauriston primary, said: "Our children absolutely loved 'Go! Go! Go!' The actors, Virginie and Louise, completely captivated the children and held their attention throughout the 70 minutes."

The Council works with local schools to produce a School Travel Plan. It promotes sustainable travel such as walking and cycling and outlines practical steps for improving children's health and safety on the journey to and from school.

Walk to work through the past

THOSE affected by the closure of London Overground, who would prefer to walk instead of using public transport, could take in the historic sights on a walking route between two boroughs.

The Hackney Central to Highbury and Islington walk takes about 45 minutes to an hour. Start in Hackney at the 13th century St Augustine's Tower, a Grade I listed building in the Narrow Way, which is all that remains of the Church of Hackney of St Augustine.

Roughly 10 minutes west of the tower, walkers will pass the German Hospital on Dalston Lane, which started as a 12-bed hospital in 1845. It grew to become a well known and respected institution which Florence Nightingale visited twice.

Cross Kingsland Road. The Romans first built a road here almost 2,000 years ago, called Ermine Street, which ran all the way to Lincoln and York.

Follow St Paul's Road and turn off just before Canonbury Park South to walk along part of the New River path. On the way to Highbury and Islington station, pass the site of Canonbury House, which has a 16th century tower. For more walking and cycling options visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/movegreener

NEWS IN BRIEF

North London Line alternatives

THE North London Line is now closed until 1 June between Gospel Oak and Stratford, as part of a £326million upgrade of the line.

Ian Brown, Managing Director of TfL London Rail, said: "We apologise for this inconvenience and are doing all we can to minimise the disruption caused."

"This was one of the most neglected railways in the UK when we took it over two years ago and these are essential works that will help us unlock the true potential of the London Overground network, to offer a far more frequent Metro-style turn-up-and-go service."

Andrew Munden, Route Director for Network Rail, added: "The investment being made in the North London line is an integral part of Network Rail's plans to improve services and build a bigger and better railway in the Capital."

"The project will provide vital additional capacity for the 2012 Games and help meet growing demand on the line, which is expected to rise by a quarter in the next seven years." Valid London Overground tickets will be accepted on all rail replacement bus services; some existing bus routes along the affected line; and at some Tube stations.

Passengers will be able to go through Zone 1 by Tube or National Rail services, at no extra cost, providing they travel from a Tube or National Rail station near their usual London Overground station.

Travellers should check their eligibility by picking up a pamphlet at a station, or contact the Oyster Help Desk on: 0845 330 9876.

A rail replacement bus service will run between Stratford and Hampstead Heath stations every 20 minutes in both directions Monday to Saturday, and every 30 minutes on Sundays. For more info visit: www.tfl.gov.uk

Pedalling wins prizes

A £25,000 prize is up for grabs for organisations that successfully encourage more employees to cycle to work. The Cycling Star Alliance, a group of cycling suppliers, is offering specialist knowledge and bike equipment to organisations with more than 1,000 employees.

The two winners will each receive a tailored 12-month programme of consultancy, parking, bikes, maintenance and cycle training worth £12,500.

The winners will be chosen from one business or public sector organisation and one NHS trust/hospital.

The closing date for entries is 12 March.

The Mayor & Councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections were in May 2006.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They all hold advice surgeries where you can meet your local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, they can often point you in the right direction and tell you who you need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – illustrated in the map opposite.

To check which councillor covers your area, or confirm surgery times, call: 020 8356 3373. More info: www.hackney.gov.uk/l-mayor-cabinet-councillors.htm

THIS is the latest in a series of regular recipes courtesy of Water House – an eco-friendly restaurant alongside the Regent's Canal in Shoreditch. Chef Ben Spice gives a proud local take on a February classic. He explains: "The original crème brulee was actually an English dish known as Cambridge burnt cream. French gastronomy legend August Escoffier had the good sense to get it written down, and it has since become known worldwide as a 'French invention'. "A surprising amount of northern French and English culinary history is similar. However, while the French have a great tradition of shouting loudly and proudly about their food, in England one of the unfortunate legacies of the industrial revolution and the hardships of two world wars is that our national culinary confidence was lost. It's so important that we recognise the many fantastic dishes that are native to this country, celebrate them and reclaim our great gastronomic past."

Cambridge Rhubarb Burnt Cream

Serves eight

Preparation time
up to a week

Cooking & cooling
2 hours

Ingredients

- 500ml double cream
- 150ml full fat milk
- 2 vanilla pods
- 4 egg yolks
- 2 whole eggs
- 200g unrefined caster sugar
- 500g rhubarb diced
- Additional sugar for burning

Method

- Heat 50g of sugar with 300ml water until you have boiling stock syrup. Pour over half of the rhubarb and leave in a bowl in the fridge for up to a week
- Put 50g sugar in a pan with the other half of diced rhubarb and cook until soft
- Scrape seeds out of vanilla pods and into cream and milk in pan. Heat gently to infuse. Do not boil
- Whisk eggs and yolks with remaining sugar and whisk hot liquid slowly into eggs
- Put back on hob on lowest heat possible. Stir until thickened. Spread two types of rhubarb across shallow bowls. Pour cream over top and bake in a water bath at 110°C for 30 mins. Cream should only have a very slight wobble to it at this point

- Leave to cool in the fridge until ready to serve
- Sprinkle an even layer of sugar over the top and burn with a blow torch. We like a nice golden brown colour at the restaurant

Top tips

- Always remember that you don't have to look far afield for all of the world's great delicacies. Yorkshire's rhubarb triangle produces something that is the envy of the world. Harvested by candlelight, the forced stalks are tender, sweet, and a distinctive bright pink in colour with tiny curled yellow leaves that make them instantly recognisable. It's a delicacy and can fetch prices three times higher than its more fibrous and bitter outdoor counterpart, so you'd be mad to miss out on it

Water House is a social enterprise that trains local people in the ethos of eco-friendly best practice in the restaurant industry. Owned by Shoreditch Trust, its profits go back into a regeneration programme for the local area. Water House in Orsman Road, N1, is open 9am to 4pm, Mon, and 9am to 11pm, Tues to Sat.

Conservation views

THERE is still time to have your say on moves to preserve the unique character of Hackney Wick. Last year, the Council designated a Conservation Area immediately north of Hackney Wick station, in a bid to stop further development ahead of a public consultation. The resulting masterplan for the area will sit alongside a Hackney Wick Conservation Area Appraisal, with the aim of preserving the area's historic buildings and open spaces, which have come under pressure from the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games site. Residents can view the appraisal document from 9am-5pm, Mon to Fri, at: 275 Mare Street, E8. For info call: 020 8356 8106; or e-mail: conservationareaconsultation@hackney.gov.uk with Hackney Wick Conservation Area Appraisal as the subject. The deadline for comments is 15 March. Visit: www.consultationfinder.com/hackney Alternatively, send comments to: Freepost NAT 18925, Policy & Strategy (Sustainability & Design Team), Hackney Planning Service, 2nd Floor Hillman Street, E8 1FB.

Gambling policy

THANKS to residents who commented on the Council's draft revised Gambling Policy last year. Hackney must publish a gambling policy at least every three years. It's based on Government guidance, which sets out how the Council should deal with applications. The majority of residents felt the number of premises should be reduced or limited. Closing all premises, more policing and enforcement, and reducing opening hours were also suggested. View the report at: www.consultationfinder.com/hackney

...tiene derecho a elegir ser tratado en el hospital de Inglaterra que prefiera?

Si su médico le remite a usted o a un miembro de su familia al hospital, tiene derecho a elegir el hospital que le tratará con independencia de dónde esté ubicado en el país. Entre los factores que pueden afectar su decisión se incluyen: la facilidad de acceso; la disposición de los aparcamientos; los índices de infección; la fama del hospital; las preferencias personales. Usted decide. Solo tiene que preguntar.

Si desea más información, póngase en contacto con el Servicio de asesoramiento y enlace con el paciente (Patient Advice and Liaison Service, PALS por sus siglas en inglés), de lunes a viernes, de 9 a 17 horas en el 0800 923 0107, o el 020 7683 4453

...you have the right to choose to go to any hospital in England?

If your doctor refers you or a member of your family to hospital, you have the right to choose which hospital treats you, no matter where it is in the country. Factors affecting your choice could include: how easy it is to get there; parking arrangements; infection rates; the reputation of the hospital; a personal preference. It's your choice. Just ask.

For more information, please contact the Patient Advice and Liaison Service (PALS), Monday-Friday, 9am-5pm on 0800 923 0107 or 020 7683 4453

İngiltere'deki herhangi bir hastaneye gitme hakkınız var.

Eğer doktorunuz sizi ya da ailenizin bir üyesini bir hastaneye sevk ederse ülkenin neresinde olursa olsun sizi hangi hastanenin tedavi edeceğini seçme hakkınız bulunmaktadır. Seçiminizi etkileyecek etkenler şunları içerebilir: hastaneye ulaşmanın ne kadar kolay olduğu, araba parkı düzenlemeleri, enfeksiyon oranları, hastanenin saygınlığı, kişisel tercih. Tercih size kalmış. Sadece isteyin.

...bạn có quyền lựa chọn đi bất cứ bệnh viện nào trên Anh quốc (England)?

Nếu bác sĩ gia đình giới thiệu bạn hoặc một thành viên trong gia đình đi bệnh viện, bạn có quyền lựa chọn bệnh viện nào chữa trị cho bạn, không cần biết bệnh viện này ở tại đâu trong nước. Những yếu tố giúp bạn lựa chọn gồm có: làm cách nào để đến đó; thu xếp nơi đậu xe; tỷ lệ nhiễm trùng; danh tiếng của bệnh viện; ý thích cá nhân. Đó là sự lựa chọn của bạn. Chỉ cần hỏi.

Muốn biết thêm thông tin, xin vui lòng liên lạc với Dịch Vụ Cố Vấn và Liên Lạc Bệnh Nhân (Patient Advice and Liaison Service: PALS), Thứ Hai - Thứ Sáu, 9am-5pm điện thoại số 0800 923 0107 hoặc 020 7683 4453
